Career Opportunities in Computer Science & Engineering

The world has entered the new millennium, which is going to be an Information Technology Age. Today, computers have assumed strategic importance and are widely used for space exploration to food processing and banking communication, etc. In this era of information technology, which has revolutionized the world, India has stood up to world standards and is being regarded worldwide for its skilled IT professionals. Even the government has recognized the promising future of the industry and has formed a new IT ministry, which will further boost this industry. Computer Science (CS) includes programming, development, computing solutions, designing system procedures, database management, networking, system administration, hardware and more.

Nature of Work

Information technology is the use of computers and software to manage information. In some companies, this is referred to as Management Information Systems (MIS) or simply as Information Services (IS). The information technology department handles storage, protection, processing, and transmission of data efficiently.

Employment Opportunities in Computer Science & Engineering

The rapid and widespread use of computers and information technology has created a strong demand for highly trained professionals with expertise in various job functions. Job prospects for computer science and engineering graduates are growing rapidly in India and abroad. System Analysis And Design (SAAD), and programming are key areas that offer diverse career opportunities. Software and IT companies are the primary employers; however, graduates can also find opportunities in schools, colleges, universities, research institutions, government departments, industries, and business sectors. They can work as programmers, web developers, and e-commerce specialists, contributing to computer-based systems in industries such as automotive, telecommunications, and aerospace. They are also employed in data processing departments and in areas where computer-aided systems are widely used.

Career Opportunities in Management

Traditionally, the term management refers to the activities, and often the group of people, involved in the four general functions: planning, organizing, leading, and controlling. These four functions recur throughout the organization and are highly integrated. Management today is not confined to the four walls of a factory; it is indispensable everywhere, whether in a hospital, an educational institution, a club, a trade union, a small business, or even in one's own home. In our age of technology, when we view our rapidly expanding global market, it is remarkable to find career opportunities in different fields of management—human resources, financial resources, and natural resources. In the field of management, one is taught to work as a team in order to achieve some predefined goals and targets of a particular organization by creating a suitable atmosphere that is conducive to growth, development, and healthy relationships among all the members.

Nature of Work

The work of a manager is to get work done through others. Some of the functions of a manager include decision-making, organizing, staffing, planning, controlling, communicating and directing. Decision-making is the process by which a course of action is consciously chosen from available alternatives. Organizing is the process by which the structure and allocation of jobs are determined. Staffing is the process by which managers select, train, promote, and retire employees. Planning is the process by which a manager anticipates the future and identifies alternative courses of action available to them. Controlling is the process that measures current performance and guides it toward a predetermined goal.

Employment Opportunities in Management

Business management today is one of the most sought-after career options. For aspirants, it has opened numerous opportunities in diverse spheres, with the promise of rewards in the form of good remuneration, status, and scope for professional and personal growth. Various sectors in which a person can work and specialize include banks, public sector enterprises, industrial houses, business houses, financial organizations, export companies, marketing organizations and multinational companies.

The admission form should be filled out and submitted along with all requisite educational documents, 6 passport-size photographs, an Aadhaar Card, and the fee for the course.

Orientation Meet

An induction program is part of an organization's knowledge management process and is intended to enable a new starter to become a useful and integrated member of the team, rather than being “thrown in at the deep end” without understanding how to behave or how their role fits in with the rest of the institution. Microtek organizes an induction meet for new entrants every year at every campus.

Discipline

Students are required to observe proper decorum while attending the programmes. No student will be allowed to enter the institution without the permission of the management authorities of the institution once they have completed the programmes or have been expelled. Students must attend all lectures regularly. Students who are absent for more than 21 days without prior written notice will be declared dropouts, and their names will be struck off the rolls. In such an event, no claim for a refund of fees will be entertained. Working professionals must attend the lectures at the institution and may take up slots on Saturday / Sunday in consultation with their faculties / counsellors.

Affidavit of Anti- Ragging

Every student admitted to Microtek Institution has to fill out and submit an anti-ragging affidavit to their academic head. If any student or staff member is found to be involved in ragging, they are liable to face legal action by the institution's administration.

The institution has also formed the Anti-Ragging Committee, which has the following members:

- Executive Director of Institutions
- HOD of the Campus
- Head Counsellor of campus
- Admin of the campus

Workshop & Training Programmes

Microtek has also been conducting various workshops and training programs on “job-seeking skills.” These workshops are designed to train students in resume writing, job hunting, interview preparation, and interview skills, based on the aptitudes, backgrounds, and abilities of the students. Various seminars on career counselling have been conducted across the country. Microtek has been reaching the masses, including those in remote locations, to create awareness about technical and professional education through showcases, roadshows, rallies, and education fairs. Doorstep presentations have been conducted at the village level, and these have resulted in the enrolment of rural youth in technical programs.

Microtek distributes bilingual publications in rural areas and holds “Chaupals” to increase awareness among rural men and women about the role of higher education in enhancing their future prospects. Apart from this, we have been conducting “skill-enhancing” workshops, Saturday activities, and demonstrations by academic and industry experts. These include food production, fashion shows, media technology, bartending, and other such activities. Industry professionals have consistently been visiting our campuses to interact with students, giving them a glimpse of what awaits them in the professional world. We are a live example of the “Industry-Academia partnership,” a concept strongly promoted by the Education Promotion Society for India (EPSI).

It is not “all work and no play” at Microtek. We strongly believe in the old adage, “A healthy body has a healthy mind.” We continuously strive to expose students to extracurricular activities, which include sports, music, and participation in local and national-level competitions. We are proud to say that many of our students have won laurels at various levels, including national-level competitions.
